AURICLE

Tuesday, March 25, 1980. A Medical Society Publication #25.

YOU KNOW IT'S GOING TO BE A BAD DAY WHEN:

-you wake up face down on the pavement.

-you call suicide prevention and they put you on hold.

-you put your bra on backwards and it fits better.

-you want to put on the clothes you wore home from last night's party, but there aren't any.

-you wake up to discover your waterbed broke, and then you realise that you don't have a waterbed.

-your identical twin forgets your birthday.

-your son tells you he wished Anita Bryant would mind her own business.

-you go to an orgy and wake up by yourself.

-your mother moves without leaving a forwarding address.

APOLOGIA:

To demonstrate our solidarity with the Journal, we are dedicating this absurdly roseate issue to our literary brothers' latest effort.

Doesn't this colour make you sick? Does this foul, revolting hue turn your bowels? To clothe such fine pieces of journalism in coats of the favourite colour of the patrons of the St. Charles! Anita Bryant would be appalled! Nevertheless, we must maintain unity. Your eyes are going to ache and your sense of colour be offended. So it goes.

The Editors.

ANATOMY WORD SEARCH

The object of this game is to find among the 400 letters in the square below 50 words pertaining to anatomy or anatomical descriptions. Among them are the twelve cranial nerves. The words generally run up and down or across, but a few run diagonally up or down. All the words are spelled forwards, so this puzzle is relatively easy compared to some others. First year students probably have an advantage on the rest of us, but everyone should take a stab at it. The scoring system, incidentally, is modelled after the University of Toronto Faculty of Medicine grading scheme.
